Be still and know that I am God.

“The steps of a good man are ordered by the LORD, And He delights in his way. Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down; For the LORD upholds him with His hand. I have been young, and now am old; Yet I have not seen the righteous forsaken, Nor his descendants begging bread.”

Psalm 37:23-25

Life has been likened to a journey. For some of us it is a short stroll that ends all too soon from the point-of-view of loved ones who took for granted that we would travel together much further down the road. For others, it is a long, rolling pilgrimage with occasional mountaintops that become treasured memories, and occasional valleys that jolt us into taking stock of where we have been, where we are and where we should be going. The truth be known, none of our journeys ends one second sooner or longer than is determined by the Almighty Who directs each of our steps. By faith we come to learn that it is God Who brings both mountains and valleys that teach us to delight in Him, to depend upon Him, and to declare His glory through it all. God’s grace has given us an eternal Home to which we are traveling. We do not know what hill will be our last, but we have a deep-settled peace that Heaven is ahead. It may be just over the next crest that we will hear our Father say, “Welcome Home!”
